Gaming Corporation releases 2010-11 Community Report during Responsible Gambling Awareness Week

October 3, 2011 – Halifax: Nova Scotians can see how the Nova Scotia Gaming Corporation (NSGC) is meeting its social responsibilities in its 2010-11 Community Report, released today.

“This report provides Nova Scotians with an update on the commitments we have made as part of our Social Responsibility Charter,” said NSGC’s Acting President & CEO, Stephen MacDonald. “We take our responsibilities seriously and we fully recognize that Nova Scotians want a socially responsible gaming industry and this community report shows how we are meeting our obligations.”

The report outlines over 30 commitments that were made during 2010-11 and includes the status and results of each as they relate to the five pillars established under NSGC’s Charter: Responsible Gambling, Integrity and Security, Citizens and Communities, Corporate Governance, and Stakeholder Relationships.

NSGC’s 2010-11 Community Report is available on its website at http://nsgc.ca/social_responsibility/social_responsibility_report_card.
